| BASE COMMUNICATIONS-COMPUTER SYSTEMS (C-CS) ASSESSMENT | DI-MISC- 80419A |

3. DESCRIPTION/PURPOSE

3.1 To provide a C-CS planning document to identify C-CS already on base, modifications the host major command (MAJCOM) has directed for the base architecture, and other future C-CS requirements. It will also assess the base capability to meet the requirements and identify shortfalls. The assessment covers a 5-year period starting with the first year of the current Program Objective Memorandum (POM).

10. PREPARATION INSTRUCTIONS

10.1 Format. The Base Communications-Computer Systems Assessment shall be in approved contractor format.

10.2 Content. The Base Communications-Computer Systems Assessment shall consist of four sections.

10.2.1 Section I. Introduction. Brief discussion of the result of the assessment, the period it covers, and the units on the base included in the assessment.

10.2.2 Section II. Baseline. The baseline shall generally cover the following subjects as amplified by the host MAJCOM.

a. General status of the cable plant, i.e., fill rate on major cables.

b. Available capacity of the telephone switch or dial central office.

c. Percent of terminal and processor use on standard computer systems (Phase IV and so forth).

10. PREPARATION INSTRUCTIONS (Continued):

d. Land mobile radio nets employed by function and frequency. Give number of portables, mobiles, and base stations (including remotes and repeaters).

e. Number and types of microcomputers employed, by organization. Include the number in use (stand-alones and networked).

10.2.3 Section III. Requirements. This section shall list or summarize C-CS requirements of the base outlined in host and tenant MAJCOM Integration and Implementation Guidance. It shall also provide detailed information on local, user-generated C-CS requirements which may require budgeting or programming action by the MAJCOM.

10.2.4 Section IV. Capabilities and Shortfall Assessment. This section shall relate which requirements the base can meet with the resources currently on hand and approved (funded). For shortfalls, identify the resources needed (and required funding, if known) to satisfy requirements the base cannot fulfill. Also identify new base requirements to support programs identified in MAJCOM plans.
