Block 10, Preparation Instructions (Continued)

10.1.3 Commercial and Government Entity code(s). Column 2 of the list shall indicate the Commercial and Government Entity (CAGE) code(s) for each line item. Each line item shall list one or more entries. The first entry shall reflect the original manufacturers code (if available). Additional entries shall be included for the end item manufacturer or other sources for the repairable item.

10.1.4 Catalog Number. Column 3 of the list shall indicate the part or catalog number assigned to the part for each CAGE. If no CAGE code exists the part number shall still be listed. Refer to 10.2.3 for additional information.

10.1.5 Approved Item Name. Column 4 of the list shall indicate the Approved Item Name which is listed in the H6 series of the Federal Item Name Directory, or the name assigned to the part by the manufacturer.

10.1.6 Unit of Measure. Column 5 of the list shall indicate the minimum Unit of Measure (Unit of Issue, U/I), available from the contractor; e.g. Each (EA), Foot (FT), Set (SE), Package (PG), etc..

10.1.7 Essentiality Code. Column 6 of the list shall indicate the Essentiality Code (EC) for the item as defined below. The essentiality code for the item shall be a one digit numeral indicating the degree to which a failure of the part affects the ability of the end item to perform its' intended operation. The codes are as follows:

1. Failure of this part will render the end item inoperable.

3. Failure of the part will not render the end item inoperable.

5. The part does not qualify for assignment code of 1 but is needed for personnel safety.

6. The part does not qualify for the assignment of code 1 but is needed for legal, climatic, or other requirements peculiar to the planned operational environment for the end item.

7. The part does not qualify for assignment of code 1 but is needed to prevent impairment or temporary reduction of operational effectiveness for the end item.

10.1.8 Shelf Life. Column 7 of the list shall indicate the Shelf Life (SL) for the part. Shelf life shall be indicated in months; e.g. 6, 12, 24, 60. If the shelf life of the part is greater than 60 months, an "X" should be indicated.

10.1.9 Production Lead Time. Column 8 of the list shall indicate the Production Lead Time (PLT) for subsequent follow-on-replacement of the part. The time shall be indicated in months required from placement of an order to delivery. An expression of 1 or 2 should indicate the item is available off-the-shelf.
