5.8 Revision. A revision is any change or addition to the drawing after its release. Revisions shall be identified in accordance with DoD-STD-100 except as noted in 5.1.2 of this standard. All changes incorporated at the same time shall be identified by the same revision letter. Each revision shall be entered in the revisions section as specified in 5.1.2 and the revision letter (letters I, O, Q, S, X, and Z shall not be used) shall be entered in the revision letter block of each revised page or new page added by the change. The title page shall always bear the latest revision letter assigned to the drawing. A revision column shall be included at the left side of each index and list page and when a line is added or revised, the applicable revision letter shall be entered in this column (see figure 5 through 13).
